School Lunches Should be Healthier

Should school lunches be healthier? I think so for many reasons. Do you ever feel tired and have no energy to concentrate? Although you may think unhealthy food tastes better, the feeling is sometimes caused by the unhealthy food served in the cafeteria.

Some children may feel that unhealthy food tastes better. Lunch ladies may also feel that unhealthy food is easier to make. They may also think that unhealthy food makes you happy and keeps children awake with the sugar.

I disagree. Unhealthy foods make you tired and have no energy. We can make healthy food taste good and not be frozen. Maybe sometimes unhealthy food is easier to make but all the other reasons that make healthy food better make it worth a little extra time. Also, parents will allow children to buy lunch more, so the school will get more money. Lastly, unhealthy food doesn't make you happy. At first you may feel that way, but after it can make your stomach hurt and give you mood swings.

I think that if children want some sugar, the school should offer dessert every once in a while and a special lunch every so often. Even an optional piece of candy in the lunch would be ok. But the school should not serve unhealthy food every day and in every lunch.
